10. What websites, other than Westlaw, Lexis and HeinOnline, do you regularly use for your legal research needs?

Count	Response
1	Asking librarians directly.
1	Cornell Legal Information Institute
1	Google

1	Maine statutes (Online), Legal Information Institute (Cornell)
1	N/A
1	NH Bar.org; NH, RI, and Maine court websites; DNH intranet website
2	None
1	google, wikipedia
3	none
1	none regularly
1	political blogs and online magazines
1	ssa.gov
1	westlaw next
1	RI State Court website for access to Superior Court decisions that we do not get via Westlaw; Google; various government websites

11. What features do you like about those websites?

Count	Response
1	Ease of searching
1	East access to cases, cite checking
1	Easy
1	Simplicity and the relevant results.
1	easy search engine. Just like google.
1	n/a
1	only source of up-to-date Social Security regulations and SSRs; only source of POMS
1	they tend to spot emerging issues and follow litigation as it happens
1	well-organized, easy to use, up-to-date
1	I use Westlaw almost exclusively. I am very familiar with it and find it easy to use. I am much less familiar with Lexis and don't like using it but can do basic things on it if I need to.
1	I get a quick general scope on a subject matter, and you do not have to switch to any other link. Once you have a general idea of what you are looking for, then you go to the appropriate library link.
1	NH periodical access and casemaker access, ebrief access through NH court website, state court rules through state court websites
1	I do not like RI State Court site. I like to speed and ease of searching on Google. Other government sites are a mix.

-------	----------

- 1 You should tell law clerks that this website exists
- 1 a compilation of the titles of new articles from the top law reviews would be of interest
- 1 Having just been prompted to look at the website, there is more there than I remember. In the District of Maine, I think we might benefit from having someone come in and do a walkthrough of the website and using WebCat and the other resources. In the past, we've had similar presentations from Cleaves Law Library. As a result, I have generally looked to them for items I cannot locate on-line by myself. Thanks for asking!
- 1 I don't really have much need to do anything with legal research as a judicial assistant. The Judge has sent me up to the library on occasion to get copies of law review articles or books and we usually do it that way.
- 1 I wish to thank you all the librarians of our Circuit, particularly to Ana Milagros and Jose, as I can work faster and more efficiently with their assistance. In addition, my sincere thanks to Julianna, for the daily summaries of the new opinions.
- 1 I recently found the draft jury instructions from Judge Hornby on the 1st Circuit library website and found those instructions to be really valuable. If there are similar model jury instructions from other judges that could be put on the website, that would also be really helpful
- 1 Although I do not use the website, I often go to the library itself and check out books, particularly treatises and practice series texts.
- 1 I am a new JA and our law clerk does the legal research. Our judge is close to retirement; therefore I have not spent time learning to use the website.
- 1 The website looks good. Never knew about before 1 minute ago. Will look at it now and try to acquaint myself with the offerings.
- 1 I have always been confused about how to make use of the library's website. I confess that I do not know what resources are available on the website, and I feel fairly certain that I would use it if some brief tutorial/training/introduction were offered.
